Christmas Eve Party Billed on NBC Network

A TWO-HOUR Christmas Eve party, with an imposing list of names which includes some of the most popular entertainers on the air, will be broadcast over an extensive NBC network Wednesday at 11 p. m.

Both the Radiola and the Victor divisions of the RCA Victor company will sponsor the program. John R. Kennedy, associate editor of Collier's, will be master of ceremonies. Nathaniel Shilkret will be general music supervisor and will conduct the concert orchestra during the broadcast.

Artists to be featured will include James Melton, tenor; Wilfred Glenn, bass; Welcome Lewis, contralto; Edna Kellogg, soprano; Andy Sannella, saxophone and guitar soloist; Johnny Marvin, popular recording artist; Leonard Joy and his High Hatters; Clyde Doerr and his saxophone octet; Rosario Bourdon recording and radio conductor; the Salon Singers, and special musical features to be presented by the Green Marimba band and the Russian Balalaika orchestra.

In addition to appropriate Christmas musical selections the program will include the latest and liveliest of new songs and dance numbers. Many stars of the stage and screen will be guests in the studio and they will be invited to greet the radio audience.

Remember that miserly, tight fisted Scrooge in Dickens' "A Christmas Carol"? Soanes, pictured above, plays that part in a presentation of Dickens' story over the Columbia network Wednesday at 11 p. m.

Yuletide Spirit Reigns Supreme on Broadcasts

SANTA CLAUS and the Yuletide spirit will reign supreme in a colorful panorama of programs featuring the sacred, festive and historical aspects of Christmas Day, to be broadcast over networks of the National Broadcasting Company. Many world renowned artists will participate.

Among the foremost events of Christmas Day will be international programs. Wickham Steed, noted Englishman, will be heard in the United States from London from 5:55 to 5:45 p. m. He will talk on "Christmas Day in England."

Immediately following Steed, William Herd, noted newspaper correspondent, will broadcast from the Washington, D. C. studios of NBC, his speech to be relayed by short wave to England and Germany. His subject will be "How America's Spending Christmas" and he will be heard from 5:45 to 5:55 p. m.

• • •

Richard Bonelli, leading baritone of the Chicago Civic Opera Company and America's best-known native-born opera star, will sing a program of songs appropriate to the Christmas season as the feature of the Maxwell House Ensemble broadcast on Christmas night. Bonelli will face the microphones of a coast-to-coast NBC network at 8:30 p. m.

• • •

Christmas morning, a long anticipated and joyful event in the lives of many children throughout the world, will be depicted in the program, "Around the Christmas Tree," to be broadcast over the Columbia network Thursday, from 10 to 11 a. m.

New Prohibition Regime Due for Close Scrutiny

ıual Supply Bill of Department Set To Be Called Up in House About Jan. 15; Controversy Is Forecast.

By International News Service

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24—The new prohibition enforcement regime of the department of justice will be put under the congressional glass about the middle of January in the most severe examination congress has yet made of a dry bureau's methods of operation, it was learned today.

The expected outbreak on the floor of the house was foreshadowed in the grilling of Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock, in the privacy of a house appropriations sub-committee considering budget requests of the justice, commerce, state and labor departments.

Scheduled in January

The annual supply bill for these departments, including the bureau of prohibition, which was transferred from the treasury to the justice department by the last session, is scheduled to be called up in the house about Jan. 15.

The proposal of Woodcock to add 500 new agents and to boost expenditures about $2,500,000 at a time when the administration is demanding economy will furnish fuel for the fire of the wets.

Dry members of the appropriations committee, it is reported, also have been "hard-boiled" in the considerations of Woodcock's demands.

The committee has already indicated it is out for an economy record having slashed budget estimates on every bill reported thus far.

In New Hands

The appropriation bill carrying funds for the bureau of prohibition has been handled in the past by a dry sub-committee. The transfer of the bureau to the justice department, however, placed it in the hands of a sub-committee which includes three wets.

The sub-committee, it was learned, voted four to three to require a "breaking down" of the bureau's proposed expenditures, which will show more than $150,000 is spent each year for informers, it is reported.

The budget requests for the justice department's bureau of prohibition total $11,530,680 as compared to $9,050,020 last year, an increase of $2,480,660.

It proposes to increase expenditures for the field force $1,592,673 and add a total of 688 employes to the bureau.

Among the requests is $366,500 for miscellaneous current expenses as against $281,300 last year. The sub-committee's decision, it is understood, will force a detailed disclose of this item.

While the house "wet bloc" has taken a stand against any further increases in prohibition enforcement funds while the treasury is facing a deficit, the promised explosion, according to one source will come when it is revealed just how the funds are spent.

PROGRAM GIVEN

The busy Bee class of the Baptist church held its meeting Monday night at the home of Dorothy Weston. A Christmas exchange took place.

Liquor Charge Here Brings Fine of $100

Fine of $100 was assessed J. A. McDaniel, 44, of 248 South Seffner avenue, when he pleaded guilty in municipal court this morning to a charge of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor.

He was arrested last night by police at Church street and Park boulevard, after patrolmen had removed a gallon jug of whisky from his Whippet coach. A revolver was also taken from him.

This pretty 19-year-old school teacher, Miss Velma Colter, was the victim of one of the most brutal murders on record. She had just swept the school room and was leaving the building when some murderous visitor entered the lonely building, three miles south of Marysville, Mo., attacked and murdered her.

Christmas Weddings To Be Few Here

Christmas marriages this year probably will show a falling off in Marion county, if the number of licenses granted before noon today at the probate court is any indication.

Only two couples procured licenses yesterday and one obtained a license this morning. The list is as follows: James D. Hennesey, laborer, of 500 Thompson street, and Helen Marie Hacker of 869 Thompson street; George Schertzer, student pastor, and Vena Hedges, both of Marion county; Garold Andrews, electrician, of McConnellsville, and Goldie Hendrickson, silk mill worker, of Marion.

Two Persons Granted Divorces in Court Here

Two divorces were granted today by common pleas court, in each of which the defendant withdrew his answer.

Bertha E. Morton was given a divorce from Edward E. Morton on grounds of gross neglect, and Jessie Verity was given a divorce from Harvey E. Verity on grounds of extreme cruelty.

J. W. Jacoby was attorney for the plaintiff in the Morton suit and L. E. Myers represented the plaintiff in the Verity case.

Crash Victim May Have Been Aerial Rum Runner

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Dec. 24—The Chicago Tribune said today investigators had advanced the theory that the plane which fell in a snow storm near La Porte, Ind., killing the pilot yesterday, was a rum runner.

The investigators the Tribune said had expressed belief that the dead pilot was Bert J. Roesch, alias reported to be known as Bert J. Kennedy, a pal of Willie Doody, gangster, to die for slaying a policeman.

NO SLOT MACHINES

By United Press

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 24—Sheriff-elect John Sulzmann declared war on slot machines today.

"There will be no public exhibition of slot machines while I am sheriff," he said, commenting on reports that Cuyahoga county had been flooded with the machines during the administration of Sheriff Edward J. Hanratty.

Sulzmann said it was his intention to conduct the sheriff's office according to law. He said he planned a survey of conditions in the county after Jan. 1, adding that he now had no accurate information on the number of slot machines operating.

PLACE HOPE IN RAIL MERGERS

Consolidation of Roads To Aid in Restoring Prosperity, Officials Predict.

BY W. S. COUSINS
I. N. S. Financial Editor.

NEW YORK Dec 23 Consolidation of important eastern American railroads into four major trunk lines will in all probability constitute one of the prominent factors in the return of prosperity to the transportation industry.

Proof that is the hope that carried the idea of the rail consolidation of several new meetings in Washington in an effort to find a solution to the railroad problem is answered by those of these leaders are primarily responsible for the following facts

Bernet's Statement

J J Bernet president of Chesapeake & Ohio Railway system said

The railroads want an extension of the time of the federal government or the state governments ought not to be competing with them by supplying service below cost and charging the deficit to the taxpayer. They think that these two principles ought not to control [illegible] operations in other fields

More than 20 per cent of all the equipment in the United States is furnished by the railroads directly and indirectly This fact is the key to why during 1930 the country had a demonstration of the often repeated warning that it could not be prosperous if the railroads were depressed

Foresees Improvement

Said J J Pelley president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford

We are going to have an improvement next year While the early part of the year will probably continue at low levels, we expect a definite upward trend some time during the year, with gradual and progressive recovery from then on

Edward E Loomis, president of the Lehigh Valley Railroad company said that the recent action on the part of the railroads themselves as to future policy, which was followed by some most constructive recommendations by the interstate commerce commission, in its report to congress, promise to put the problems of the industry clearly before the public and a better understanding of them must surely follow.

MAY HAVE MEANS TO COMBAT DEADLY GAS

Invention Also Expected To Save Large Amounts of Gasoline.

By International News Service

NEW YORK—A device which, it is hoped, will put an end to the menace of the deadly carbon monoxide gas and which at the same time may save a billion dollars annually in gasoline bills has been invented by Dr Miller Reese Hutchinson former chief engineer and personal representative of Thomas A Edison.

The invention is a simple machine with only a few parts and weighing less than a pound and a half It registers through an ammeter dial and indicates on a graduated scale what percentages of unused fuel is passing out through the exhaust of a motor The automobile driver or pilot from this reading can adjust his fuel to the proper mixture, where necessary making the mixture more lean so as to conserve the combustion

Dr Hutchinson's device is based on the catalytic qualities of platinum and has been used successfully for six months he said on an airplane owned and flown by him

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT UNCHANGED IN 85 YEARS, MT. GILEAD MAN FINDS

MT. GILEAD, Dec. 24—"The Christmas spirit is the same today as it was years ago during my boyhood," says George Shipman, 85, who has been a well-known figure in Morrow county for many years.

"All material things have changed greatly, however, and the ways of celebrating the birth of Christ have undergone many changes. When the community was practically a self-contained unit the majority of Christmas gifts exchanged were made and not bought at stores. It may be because I am an old man that I feel that more real sentiment was represented by the gifts one made.

* * *

"In those days it was the custom in the community where I was born and raised for a number of families in the neighborhood to gather at one home for the turkey feast on Christmas day.

"Wild turkeys were common and though hard hunting for inexpert nimrods there was usually a bountiful supply for the table. We never thought of purchasing turkey at a meat market. There were usually four or five families at these gatherings, for which no invitations were issued. It was the custom to drop in unbidden in a way which would be looked on nowadays as very bad taste.

GEORGE SHIPMAN

"Christmas programs in churches were confined mostly to special music and rarely included the elaborate children's programs so common now. Christmas is now more than ever for the children. As on all other occasions children were to be seen and not heard.

"Charitable work through organizations at Christmas was practically non-existent. In rural communities especially, nearly all efforts to make Christmas a happy time for the unfortunate were confined to individuals.

"Decorations were for the most part evergreen trees and holly. The colored lights and other elaborate decorations which are used to beautify homes and public streets were unheard of then. They have made the season even more enjoyable than it used to be."

Mr. Shipman was born three miles southeast of Mt. Gilead on land which his father and grandfather James Shipman and Harmon Shipman opened up from the wilderness. Mt. Gilead at the time his grandfather opened the land did not exist. Sixty years ago a large part of the public square there was a lake, Mr. Shipman states. He has lived in Mt. Gilead for the last 40 years. He retired from the hardware and implement business in 1916.

OHIO STARTS STREET SURVEY

Highway in Mt. Gilead May Be Widened by State Department.

Special To The Star

MT. GILEAD, Dec. 24—Engineers from the state highway department are now in Mt. Gilead surveying Main street. It is rumored that the plans for widening and repaving the street at least between the north and south squares are finally being given consideration by the department.

If such is the case the improvement will probably be started next spring. Efforts of the mayor and the town council to secure the aid of the state which have extended over a period of at least three years are now bearing fruit.

Route 42 on which construction work is in progress just east of Mt. Gilead, may be opened to through traffic sometime next week. Only one side of the concrete has been laid from the bridge over the Whetstone up to Bank street but gravel has been applied to the other half so that it can soon be put in use. The detour from Mt. Gilead around by Edison church then will be abandoned.

ALABAMA AT SCENE OF NEW YEAR'S GAM

CRIMSON TIDE BEGINS PRACTICE SESSION FOR COUGAR BATTLE

Travel Worn, but Confident, Wade's Proteges Prepare for Tournament Fray.

By The Associated Press

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 24—Scarcely more than a print and a pass removed from the Rose Bowl where the annual New Year's day Tournament of Roses football finale will be presented the Crimson Tide of Alabama today started generative power to be turned loose upon Washington State.

Weary of travel but fresh of spirit, Coach Wallace Wade's soft spoken Southerners sorted out their gridiron trappings for a renewal of practice periods, eager to begin final preparation for the classic which marks their third western invasion.

A team of power was the Alabama aggregation, which displayed business like intentions last night by pushing through a short but impressive workout only a few minutes after climbing stiffly from a special train.

There were no predictions to be made by team or coach on arrival. Wade said his men were in good condition; that they would settle down to an uninterrupted grind of preparation and that, while California weather was a trifle warmer than that in Alabama, it would have no effect on the team. That was all.

Captain Charles "Footo" Clement registered surprise that his team should rate as favorites. "I don't see why we should be given the edge after traveling clear across the country, but we'll sure put out everything we have, you-all can bank on that."

"Gosh, they look big," he commented.

LONDOS WINNER

By International News Service

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—Jim Londos was still recognized as world's heavyweight wrestling champion today in these parts but he was extended to win from Renato Gardini in a finish match last night. He finally threw the Italian star in 32:18 with a crotch hold.

IF the Harding High basketeers do not demonstrate some basketball in the opening N. C. O. game on Jan. 2 of a vastly superior type than was shown in two previous tilts this year it will not be because they have not sufficient practice. Each day Coach Bohyer herds his charges into the confines of The Star auditorium for a two hour practice period.

Bohyer is working hard to develop the material into a quintet that will give at least a fair account of itself in the N. C. O. championship race this season. It is a dead certainty that unless the team improves a lot before league play had many games will be chalked up in the right side of the ledger.

THE basketball stock of Ashland High school took a considerable jump yesterday when it was announced that Nick Dolby was again in condition to take his place in the lineup. Dolby, one of the better athletes of the Ashland school will resume his old position at guard. His presence there will probably not aid opposing teams to any great extent for he is one of the outstanding defensive players of the league. Dolby was injured in the final football game against Mansfield.

Coach Rosie Starn of Ashland is preping his charges now for the initial tilt of the N. C. O. season. Ashland does not figure to have the strongest team in the conference but it is almost sure to be better than last season. Starn figures if he can get his team off to a good start in the Bucyrus battle he will have a good chance to bring them through the season in fairly good fashion.

Coach Russ Murphy of Mansfield is reported to be working his men over time in an effort to construct a presentable lineup to the N. C. O. fans who watch the Tygers open the season with Harding here on Jan. 2. Murphy has just about everything but a good basketball team this year and it is quite doubtful if he comes through the cage year in very successful manner. He can look ahead without misgivings though for nearly all of the present lineup are sophomores. By next year they should be ready to step right into the limelight of the circuit. In fact it wouldn't be surprising if his team came through later in this season with some surprise victories over the league favorites. Maybe I shouldn't suggest such a thing here. It will be bad enough when it happens.

Hockey Players Settle Arguments with Fists

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The young men who play hockey for national league clubs apparently have forgotten all about the peaceful spirit of Christmas time as they go about their business of trying to win games. With the struggle for the better places in the standing getting hotter with every game, the players began their annual custom of dropping sticks and settling their differences with their fists last night.

One real fight and plenty of roughing matches occurred in last night's three games. Reginald "Red" Horner of Toronto and Nelson Stewart of Montreal started the fist swinging as the climax to a rough game in which the Maroons and Maple Leafs tied at 4-4. The Leafs staged a great uphill fight to take the lead in the third period only to have Montreal score two goals and tie the count in the last few minutes.

To Wish You Much Happiness for This Christmas and all throughout the coming year.

GRID MENTORS MAY ATTEMPT DISPOSAL OF ADDITIONAL POINT

Over-Emphasis Not Likely To Attract Much Attention of Coaches.

By United Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—Next Monday—just one week after Doctor Nicholas Murray Butler fired the opening broadside of the annual attack against overemphasis in football the country's gridiron coaches gather here for their yearly meeting.

Despite the fact that the convention coincides with the open season for football criticism no one need be disappointed if the coaches fail to make mention of overemphasis. Even at this time early date it may safely be predicted that the coaches will find time for almost everything else but a discussion of the alleged evils of the sport that gives them a living.

It is not difficult to understand why your coach is so callous or indifferent to criticisms of his favorite sport. The same old hullabaloo is raised each year and each fall finds football going about its business at the same old stand with the same old customers.

"So why worry?" asks your coach. "Let's talk about the evils of the point-after-touchdown."

The point-after-touchdown, by the way, is expected to furnish the coaches their main topic for discussion.

Coach Bill Alexander of Georgia Tech, president of the American Football Coaches association, has already openly expressed his disapproval of the extra point. With Alexander heading the abolition movement it would seem that the little point is all but gone.

Alexander's backers are likely to be recruited from the ranks of those coaches whose teams lost close decisions because of the extra point. Major Ralph Sasse whose Army team fell before Notre Dame 6 to 7 isn't likely to favor the extra point. Neither is Slip Madigan of St Mary's, whose Gaels were nosed out 7 to 6 by California. Chick Meehan, having watched his team lose to both Colgate and Georgia by 7 to 6 scores, is not expected to make a long and fervent speech in defense of the pesky little point.

Even those coaches whose teams benefitted this season by the extra point-after-touchdown admit that it is unfair.

If the extra point is ruled out, the field goal is likely to come back into its own, for the three points gained by a kick would be the ideal way to settle a close game.

Dazzy Vance Declines To Sign Contract

By The Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Dec. 24—Dazzy Vance, ace of the Brooklyn Robins hurling staff, has failed to sign the contract offered him by the Brooklyn club.

Vance intimated, however, his conference with President Frank York in Brooklyn was a friendly one and that neither expected any trouble in reaching agreement in the spring.

Temple Star Compiles Good Scoring Mark

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 24—John Bonner, star forward of the Temple university basketball team, has been scoring for seven consecutive years.

Playing in 146 games during that stretch, Bonner has registered 2,590 points, an average of 370 points a season. He compiled this mark in four years of high school basketball and three at college. He captained the football team last fall.

Zuppke Allays Rumor He Will Leave Post

By The Associated Press

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Dec. 24—Coach Bob Zuppke means it when he sings the "Illinois Loyalty" song.

In denying rumors that he was planning to leave the university of Illinois to accept a football coachship at some other college, he said: "I shall never leave Illinois under any consideration. It is the only university ball team I have ever coached. I have been here 15 years and Illinois means too much to me ever to think of leaving."

IOWA RALLIES TO WIN

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Dec. 24—After two bad starts, the University of Iowa basketball team has finally wedged into the victory column. Coming from behind in a last half rally, the Hawkeyes last night defeated the strong Creighton college team of Omaha, conqueror of Pittsburgh, 28 to 27. Kover led the Hawkeye scorers with ten points.

England's Best Arrive Looking for Battles

By United Press

LOCAL PIN SMASHERS BEATEN IN 5 GAMES

Win One in Six from Bucyrus and Upper Sandusky Fives.

Two Marion bowling teams were able last night to gain but a single victory in six games over teams from Upper Sandusky and Bucyrus. The Erie Railroaders from Marion took it on the chin three times in a row from the Upper Sandusky quintets but Rice's Cowboys of Marion rose to victory once in a trio of games. All the games were rolled on the Recreation bowling alleys.

The Cowboys mauled the maples for a high score of 1018 in the opening round of their three-game series with Upper Sandusky to beat the 870 turned in by the invading team. They must have used all their high powered ammunition in the first round for their scores dropped considerably in the next two games and Upper was winner in both.

The Bucyrus pin men set the local Erie railroaders down three straight with scores of 963, 959 and 934. The best the Marion Erie bowlers could do was collect 892, 894 and 912.

In the All-Star bowling league Wrenn's garage five continued to cling to its slender lead by taking a trio of games from Jim Dugan's pin smashers.

ILLNESS MAY FORCE ROCKNE TO RETIRE

Notre Dame Grid Mentor Advised To Quit "Too Strenuous Life."

BY PAUL MICKELSON

Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Dec. 24—The Knute Rockne of 1930 is a man with a thousand dollars in a figure of the past.

That was the consensus of the famous Notre Dame football coach's closest friends today after reading the advice of his physicians to quit the too strenuous life.

Just how far Rockne would go to appease the worry of his family, physicians and friends was a matter of divided personal opinion. Many believed he would retire from active coaching and become director of athletics at Notre Dame. Some guessed he would take a year's leave of absence, while the majority were quite certain he would merely refrain from his many extra activities and devote all his time and attention to Notre Dame football.

The latter belief appeared most correct. Upon his return from the Notre Dame-Southern California football game Dec. 10, Rockne told the Associated Press that he planned to "stop writing, speaking over radio and to luncheon clubs and all the extras that I have been trying to handle."

"All this extra activity, along with the natural worries a football coach has to contend with, has me fatigued," he said. "I've got to stop it or it's all going to stop me. I don't mean to complain but really I am kept jumping too much. Look at me now. I'm all in and really ill, but I can stay home but two nights and then I have to keep a date in New York for the charity football game between the New York Giants and the Notre Dame All-stars. After that I've got some speeches scheduled. Then I will go to Rochester, Minn., for a physical checkup, and then jump out to Los Angeles for another charity game. It's a hard job to get required rest."

Notre Dame officials today refused to make any comment, believing none was necessary until Rockne himself brought the matter up.

STOCKS REACT TO NEW RATE

2 Per Cent Rediscount Rate Provides Impetus for Securities Gain.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—The security markets were decidedly cheered at finding a 2 per cent rediscount rate on Wall Street Christmas tree today.

The recent abundance of money has been more apparent than real, owing to the unsatisfactory market for bonds, and the financial district, which a fortnight ago had about decided there would be no Christmas, felt that it had grounds for believing this gift from the federal reserve would prove more useful than ornamental.

Stocks responded with a brisk advance, bonds were only a trifle steadier, but the effects could scarcely be expected to be felt so promptly in that market. The advance of stocks was evidently accelerated by short covering. Such wide moving issues as Union Pacific, Worthington, Allied Chemical, Case, American Waterworks, and Auburn advanced 5 to 7 points, and gains of 3 or 4 were made by such issues as American Can Borden, American Tobacco B, Air Reduction, and Eastman. Such issues as U. S. Steel, Anaconda, Consolidated Gas, American Telephone, Bethlehem Steel, Johns Manville, Union Carbide, Macy, Woolworth and International Harvester gained 2 points or more.

The favorable interpretation placed on the reduction in the New York federal reserve banks redis count rate from 2½ to 2 per cent was in contrast to the rather cynical view which had been taken of some of the numerous reductions which has carried the rate down from the peak of 6 per cent 14 months ago. During earlier months of the year, however, the bond market was strong, and credit not only cheap but readily available.

The heavy liquidation by banks of bond investments to raise cash has been one of the troublesome developments of recent weeks, and bond dealers hope the lower rate will encourage them to borrow from the reserve rather than bumping their investments.

The mid-week business statistics failed to do much to bolster the more cheerful attitude. The freight car loadings figures, as announced for the second week of the month, showed a larger decline than is usual for that period.

CORN HIGHER, WHEAT SLUMPS

Absence of Aggressive Buying Characterizes Chicago Grain Market.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO Dec. 24—Wheat averaged lower and corn higher at the opening today. Absence of aggressive buying characterized the wheat market, whereas corn offerings were relatively scarce. Starting ¼ cents off to ¼ up, wheat afterward held steady. Corn opened ⅝@¾ cents higher and subsequently reacted.

Influenced by corn strength, Chicago wheat at one stage took a quick upward shoot of more than one cent for March and May deliveries. The upturn was aided by announcement that the season's last wheat cargo from Canada for Europe had left Quebec. There were also New York advices that export business had picked up, and that Argentine shipments for the last week had decreased.

Corn traders gave particular attention to assertions that during the winter months the average disappearance of corn was between 460,000,000 and 455,000,000 bushels against average primary receipts of 300,000,000. Corn arrivals at primary centers today were but 881,000 bushels, compared with 1,097,000 a week ago. Oats followed corn. Provisions advanced, responsive to upturns in hog values.

WOMAN SHERIFF HAS SUCCESSFUL TERM

Wife Takes Post When Husband Dies; Serves 12 Months.

By International News Service

SYCAMORE, Ill.—Illinois' only woman sheriff, Mrs. Helena Dolder of DeKalb county, having turned over her star to her successor, W. F. George of Shabbona, can look back on her term with the assurance that woman's equality with men is some further advanced.

At one time during her term of service the prisoners in the jail turned out for exercise in the "bull pen" decided to stage a revolt against "petticoat rule." The revolt was short-lived and proved to be a damp affair, for the "petticoat" in question turned a stream of water from the fire hose on the yelling prisoners who were milling around the bull pen.

Wet and shivering from their unexpected bath, the men were herded back into their cells and went without their evening meals. There were no more revolts in the Sycamore jail while Mrs. Dolder was in office.

Mrs. Dolder's husband, Fred, was elected sheriff in November, 1926 and died in January 1928, after serving about 15 months. Mrs. Dolder ran for the short term nomination in April, 1928 and one of the men she defeated was W. G. George who succeeded her in office the first of this month.

ARCHITECT TELLS OF MODERN HOME PLANS

By International News Service

PULLMAN, Wash. — Economic factors in and outside the home are having a prominent effect upon floor plans of the modern domicile, according to Stanley A. Smith, head of the State college department of architectural engineering.

The modern housewife with her wide range of activities is the largest factor in the new order of building, he declared.

"The rising tide of married women who prefer teaching, computing figures or composing letters to preparing meals or polishing silver is unquestionably increasing," Smith said. This, coupled with the fact that servants are hard to get, may have a direct bearing on the fabric of the home, which in turn is reflected in the floor plans of new houses.

"If guests are to be invited to dinner at a hotel or driven to a golf club or to a downtown restaurant, why build a large dining room? This is the question which has confronted hundreds of home builders, and which have led to the gradual disappearance of room used for no other purpose than for formal dinners.

"The modern hostess has come to the conclusion that a large dining room is excessive, and that massive sideboards with other matching pieces of furniture are merely white elephants. The newer homes as a consequence feature an extra large living room and a miniature affair termed the dinette. Ideas in entertaining are turning from the formal meal to the delightful buffet supper or small dinner tables."

PRAISES AMERICANS AS "KINDEST PEOPLE"

Tribute Comes from Philippine Educator Making Tour of Country.

By International News Service

DENVER—"The kindest people in the world."

This is the tribute paid Americans by Dr. Antonio D. [illegible], associate professor at the University of the Philippines and eminent bone specialist, who is making this country for the research.

"Say for me that the Americans are the kindest people in the world," he told a Denver reporter. "No European race can compare with them. Since I landed in Seattle, I have met with one kindness after another. Sometimes it is a dream—so much love and attention. And Mrs. [illegible] says the same thing."

The tuberculosis problem, according to Dr. Vasquez, is serious in some parts of the Philippines.

"In some parts I would say 20 per cent of the people are afflicted," he said. "Naturally we must fight hard and quickly. For that reason I am in this country attempting to learn your latest discoveries and methods of combating the disease."

The University of the Philippines, Dr. Vasquez said, has endeavored to awaken among the people a pride in their own institutions and to advance the study of medicine. As rapidly as possible Americans on the staff are being replaced with native physicians.

Relations between the Filipinos and the United States were never more harmonious than at the present time, Dr. Vasquez believes.

"Take social relations for example—40 per cent of my friends are Americans. Our people do not feel animosity toward you. They wish to succeed as you Americans succeed. They are anxious to be as modern—to be able to use the latest scientific discoveries—to live life in the modern manner."

From Denver Dr. Vasquez will go to Chicago, Rochester, Minn., Lake, New York and Washington, D. C. He has a year's leave of absence from Manila.

Hoover Chairman Lauds New Policy of Industry

Woods Tells of Growing Tendency of Employers To Keep Up Wage Standards and Retain All Workers Possible Under Prevailing Conditions.

Editor's Note—In the second of two interviews given the United Press Chairman Woods of the national emergency committee on employment, reveals herewith a new outlook by industrial leaders for a period of depression.

Copyright, 1930 by United Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24—Far-sighted industrial leaders of the United States have come to realize the importance of setting high standards of wages during periods of depression, Arthur Woods, chairman of President Hoover's emergency committee on employment, revealed in an interview with the United Press.

This change of attitude is one of the most important things about the present situation. Wise industrial leaders are trying to keep up the buying power of labor. As we go into the new year that is our most hopeful sign.

Changed Tactics

"In the good old days if we had unemployment the business man became a dictator. He paid. When Napoleon had unemployment he started a war. Until now the procedure has been for every employer to batten down his hatches, fire everyone he possibly could, cut out.

"When he went to the bank he found he could get no money until he had cut wages and fired right and left.

"Now we are doing it differently. The feeling in industry and among the bankers is that it is good business for them to take care of their people. We are in touch with hundreds of leaders. They are generally convinced three things are necessary.

"First, they feel it is good business to keep people wherever they can instead of firing them indiscriminately to get costs down. When the number of work hours must be reduced the tendency is to keep the existing unit wage and reduce the hours of employes so that all may have some work instead of many having none at all.

"Fill-in" Operations

"Second, instead of shutting down the plant to cut expenses, the modern business man is looking about to see what repairs, replacements and other construction can be wisely undertaken to give jobs.

"Third, if an employer must let men go, it is done differently. He now looks into the position of his employes, to see which can best weather a period of idleness. Some have savings. Single men are laid off first. If an employe is turned out an effort is made to keep in touch with him in a friendly way. Often loans without interest are offered, to be paid back when the man gets another job."

Bladder Irritation Causes Many Pains

Functional Bladder Irritation often causes Burning, Smarting, Backache, Leg Pains, Muscular Aches, and may interrupt your sleep frequently. If you feel tired, depressed and discouraged, why not try the Cystex 48 Hour Test at our risk? For three years we have distributed Cystex, recommend it highly, and find that it gives unusual satisfaction. Don't wait, or give up. Get Cystex (pronounced Siss-tex) at our drug counter today. CHICAGO—Santa's wife walked into a department store purchased an article and whispered to the clerk, "charge it to Mrs. Santa, Mrs. Edward D. Santa," she said, and please don't repeat the name out loud. Children always swarm around me when they hear it."

• • •

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—For the first time in history Negroes will gather at the grave of Abraham Lincoln in Oak Ridge cemetery on Christmas eve and sing carols in honor of the man who liberated them.

• • •

NEW YORK—Father Neptune will take over Santa Claus' duties as the Grace liner, Santa Barbara, nears the equator tomorrow. Three children, Eloise Hodges, 5, Georgene Hodges, 6, and Carlos Dasso, 7, are passengers and when they were informed they would have to spend Christmas at sea, they could not see how Santa Claus could reach them. Arrangements were made to have Father Neptune rise out of the sea and distribute the gifts.

• • •

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Thomas Tomczak didn't have a job, but he and the family planned a merry Christmas because they had a barnyard full of chickens and ducks. Three days ago the fowls began to die. A veterinary explained it was poisoning. Tomczak went for a walk to forget his troubles, and on the way home he got a job.

• • •

DETROIT, Mich.—Virginia Pirkin, 4-year-old cripple, faced a cheerless Christmas until Mayor Frank Murphy told her she could throw the switch that will light the hundreds of lights on the municipal Christmas tree. "Can I wear a Santa Claus suit?" she asked. The mayor said yes.

• • •

PULASKI, Va.—Nine-year-old Watts Steger has been saving his money for a year to buy a Christmas bicycle. Someone told Watts lots of people in Pulaski would go hungry this year. "Buy five barrels of flour and give it to poor people," he ordered tossing his bicycle money on the counter at the community chest headquarters.

• • •

DANVILLE, Pa.—The Salvation Army is not in the position of building toy bank shown. It was full of money to be given to the poor at Christmas.

• • •

NEW BEDFORD, Mass.—Christmas is going to be a dreary day for two-year-old Lillian Correia. She swallowed a glass eye out of her teddy bear and has been in a hospital for days.

• • •

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Eighteen-year-old Jorge Ibanez, suffering from a fractured skull during in Emergency hospital, the only thing he wanted was to live until Christmas. He had planned his celebration and it took considerable of his strength. He was buried in Pine Hill cemetery.

• • •

OLYMPIA, Wash.—The only chance Karl Thompson has of eating a Christmas dinner is that he will catch a fish. For days the old man has been standing on the Fourth street bridge trying to catch a fish, but so far has been unsuccessful.

• • •

CHICAGO—Barum Christmas and wife and the two little Christmases are unhappy. "I'm a chief fear," Christmas said. "I haven't had a job for four months. There won't be any Santa Claus in this house."

CENTRAL HI TEAM WINS CAGE MEET

Room 17 Quintet Takes Laurels in Eighth Grade Tournament.

Room 17, Central Junior High school, won the eighth grade section of the grade school basketball tournament held yesterday at the Y. M. C. A. by defeating the Room 22 team, 24 to 12, in the final round.

State street school took the sixth grade championship, winning from Oakland, 15 to 8, in the final game, while Greenwood won the seventh grade title. Greenwood defeated Pearl, 12 to 11, in the last game.

Teams entered in the tournament were as follows: sixth grade—Oak, Glenwood, Pearl, Oakland, Mark, Greenwood, Silver, Olney and State; seventh — Olney, Mark, Greenwood, Oak, Silver, Glenwood, State, St. Mary's, Pearl, Oakland and Vernon; eighth—Central rooms 17, 18, 19, 20, 22, 23, 24 and main assembly; Vernon, St. Mary's and Silver.

HELD TO GRAND JURY

Earl Chester, 23, of Fountain street, and Merle Carr, 36, of 670 Gay street, were bound over to the grand jury under $1,000 bond each following a preliminary hearing in municipal court yesterday afternoon. They are charged with grand larceny in connection with the theft Oct. 24 of an acetylene welding outfit from the contracting firm of H. P. Streicher & Co. of Toledo, then doing work in Marion.

"Right," I said. "I ... but I do want to tell ... as I shall value this, ... in me which means, ..."

My voice trailed off, and Mr. Veritzen bent over my hands, brushing them with his lips in his invariable foreign fashion.

"You value my poor offerings far too highly," he said. "And now I must hurry. I promised Mrs. Brixton that I would help her distribute Christmas largesse this morning. She has a list of families to whom she is taking dinners and toys."

"Milord and Lady Bountiful," Lillian gibed, looking after him. "They're going to have the time of their lives this morning carrying chickens and cheer into cheerless homes."

"Madge! Didn't that old buzzard bring anything to Noel?"

I turned quickly toward her, saw her holding at arm's length the magnificent roses Mr. Veritzen had brought her. Around her mouth were etched lines of distaste, and she looked as if she would like to toss the flowers into the nearest waste basket.

"Sickening for Something"

"I am sure he didn't," I exclaimed, as hotly resentful as she was. "He must be implacable! Christmas Day and no slightest recognition of his only child. And yet—it has seemed lately as though he were softening a bit in his attitude."

"Let us hope," she retorted grimly. "Of course, there's this to be considered. Unless he's prepared to go the whole way and take back all his cussedness, Noel wouldn't want a Christmas present from his father, and in all probability would return it. But there's no use speculating. I hear Harry and Dicky. Shall I break the news of Phil's Christmas offerings? Why! what's the matter? You're as white as a floured pudding."

"It's nothing," I said, groping for a chair and sitting down heavily in it. The queer giddiness had come back upon me, and I knew that it was because of my nervous dread of Dicky's reaction to this latest flamboyant gesture of Philip Veritzen's.

"You're 'sickening for something,' as your mother-in-law would say," Lillian told me. "But pull yourself together if you can. I'll tackle Dicky."

She turned to the door as the two men came through it, and her voice rang out with a clever simulation of excitement.

"Come here, you two and do your stuff. I'm just boning to have you go into a jealous rage over me, Harry, and of course Dicky'll never let you have a tantrum by yourself. Take a look at these roses old Phil Veritzen just handed me, and gaze at what he's given me, and gaze at what's he's given little Madgie, and prepare to let your neck hackles bristle."

Christmas Dinner at the Farmhouse.

UNNERVED and dizzy as I was, I doffed a mental chapeau to Lillian at the sure touch of raillery, which had made it impossible for Dicky to evince any jealous rage at the Christmas present which Philip Veritzen just had brought to me. I also had a little feeling of envy at the confidence which I knew was hers in her husband's equanimity at the sight of the exquisite roses which were Philip Veritzen's Christmas offering to her. He had laughed heartily at her gibing, Dicky was constrainedly, and then both men had turned in astonishment as great a gift had been at the "mere boy" as my employer had dubbed his wife.

"Yes, all of that and then some," Lillian said, as they exclaimed over the duplicate of Philip Veritzen's famous miniature stage. "And he has told Madge that maybe he will write a good part for him or some other producer. Take your bow, Madge."

I tried to smile, and looked at Dicky, to catch and solve a look of—yes, admiration—exultant, resentful, but genuine, which was like a heady draught. But I felt that I could not rise to my feet if my life depended on the motion.

Dicky Suddenly Concerned

"What's the matter?" Dicky's voice was suddenly concerned. "You look all in."

"Not having a frame of steel bolts and iron sheets instead of flesh and blood, she is," Lillian retorted. "She's all worn out, and I'm going to take her upstairs and turn her over to Katherine with instructions not to let her downstairs again until it's time to decorate the dinner table. Everything else is done, I can play the gracious hostess, and you boys are going to play downstairs in that basement playroom all day, anyway, so it's the swellest sort of time for Madge to take one of her Christmas books and read or snooze, whichever she wants. Rest is all she needs."

Her energy swept them out of the room and me up to Katherine in the next five minutes, stopping only for me to choose my Christmas reading. And when Katherine, with an oddly scrutable look at me, had put me into bed and adjusted my reading lamp, Lillian stooped and kissed me with an affectionate grin.

"Please tuck that Puritan conscience away in moth balls for the rest of the day," she adjured. "You've done your full duty by everybody, so read and sleep your fool head off."

That Dizzy Spell Again

With an effort I answered her smile, and opened my book as if to read. But once she and Katherine had left the room, closing the door after them, I let it drop from my hand as a recurring wave of dizziness swept over me. When I had swung back to equilibrium again, I was close to exhaustion, with just strength enough to turn off the switch of my reading lamp. Then I sank deep into slumber and did not awaken until almost dusk. I should have been thoroughly rested, but to my dismay, I felt but little better than when Lillian had brought me up to bed. I served myself, however, to get up and take a quick shower. Then I dressed for dinner and slipped on a big apron over my cream lace gown, which Junior demands for every Christmas celebration. When I opened my door I heard Katherine's voice from across the hall.

"Come in here a minute before you go downstairs," she commanded. "I've been keeping water hot for your tea for an hour."

By the time I had crossed the hall she had a tea ball in a cup and compelled me to drink it and eat some crisped rolls.

Setting the Table

"You'll do now until you can snatch something from Katie; or, even if you don't," she said. "Now I'll come down with you and be errand girl for that dinner table."

Lillian was comfortably reading downstairs, as were my father and Dicky's mother. Harry and Dicky and the boys were still downstairs. Mary and Noel had gone out for a walk, and Marion, of course, was still at The Larches. We collected Lillian and went into the dining room to which Katie and Jim brought the boxes of decorations I had secreted in their room. Then, locking the doors, for the table was to be a surprise for the children, we set to work upon the scheme which I had planned for months.

We worked busily with [illegible] conscription of our [illegible] electrical problem [illegible] for us, and, at last, we stood back and looked at a table which I knew would delight Junior and Roderick, no matter how crude and juvenile it might seem to Philip Veritzen, our fastidious guest of honor. But Junior and Roderick were the ones for whom I had planned it, and I was content. When we turned on the switch it seemed to my prejudiced eyes to present a creditable illusion of Santa Claus driving his reindeer down a village street, with houses illuminated for his coming.

"I know he's supposed to come down darkened chimneys," I said, "but Junior and Roderick will like it better this way."

The Dinner a Success

"So will Phil," Lillian said, dryly. "He likes the bright lights."

"It probably will offend his artistic sensibilities so much that it will spoil his dinner," I commented crossly, for I was again suffering from the nervous fatigue which had taken its toll of me all day. But I was a false prophet for when Katie unlocked the doors for dinner, and we all trooped in, Mr. Veritzen's voice was loudest in praise for the effect we had produced.

"You will be a producer as well as a playwright," he said in a low voice, but I knew that Dicky had heard the compliment by the glowering look upon his face, which, however, he promptly controlled.

The dinner, one of Katie's best, proceeded with perfect smoothness, and, relaxed, I saw that Philip Veritzen, epicure, was thoroughly enjoying the old-fashioned dishes, which always compose our holiday dinners. The rest were also exuberant in their praise, and when we adjourned to the living room for coffee I had the satisfied feeling of a hostess whose plans have been flawlessly carried out.

But I had only a few moments of quiet. Then Mary touched me on the shoulder and I turned to see her face working and tears in her eyes.

"Please come with me, Auntie Madge," she whispered.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TOMORROW is the big day! I got up and let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth, and liked to of froze to the window sill before I got the window down. Then I went out to the barn to freeze to death with the cows whilst my mother and father and Annabelle Lee staid in their warm beds till it was time to get up and feed their warm faces, not caring about me whose hands would be too cold to hold a fork by that time. I don't care. I would rather eat with a spoon anyhow. My mother and father went over to the Last Bag of Tripe's house last night to see about the blowing up of our gas stove, and he said he found some old shot gun shells over at Fernchy's house and put them in his pocket, and when he got by himself he cut them open and took out the powder in a paper bag, and there was quite a lot of it, and he didn't know what to do with it, so when he got to our house yesterday morning he put it in the oven of our stove and shut the oven, and he didn't think it would do any harm because he had heard about baking powder. He said he didn't speak out because he was afraid, but because he remembered that he had to go somewhere. They are going to pay for having our stove fixed which was done this morning, so my mother could bake the turkey for Christmas.

We watched the man, Younise and Feeble and Maggie and me, and he bored holes in iron just like it was wood. He was pretty slick. Then the girls and I went to market to find a turkey if we could, and turkeys were cheap, the man said, and he gave me a big one for two-seventy, so then I said I wanted another one and he showed me a big one for three dollars, but I told him I only had two-dirty, so he gave it to me for that, and we all went tramping through the snow to the schoolhouse and hammered on the basement door and hollered, and Mush opened the door and we hollered Mary Christmas, and he tried to shut the door, but just then he saw the turkeys and opened the door and told us to come in, and just then his wife hollered, "You fat fool, are you trying to freeze me to death?"

He said he wasn't. Not that he wasn't a fat fool—he knowed she knowed him too well for him to get away with that, but that he wasn't trying to freeze her to death. She tried to kiss me when I held out one of the turkeys to her, and both turkeys got away, and Mush busted himself over the side of a wash tub she had been taking a bath in, but he got the turkeys and kept the biggest one. When I took the other one home my mother kissed me, but I would rather she would than Mush's wife. Tomorrow is the big day. I ought to get lots of turkey I bought it.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, Dec. 25

THE great Christian festival, while being fairly lively and moderately prosperous and gay, may have an element of more than usual sobriety and subdued celebration. This referring to legitimate holiday indulgence and social merriment. There is a sign read as subtle, and mysterious, of singular menace, with the prospect of undermining the health and festive well-being by poisons, drugs or illicit indulgences. Chaos and duplicity have strong power on this day. Complete discretion is urged. Some are in line for promotion or preferment in employment.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a year with many subtle complications, with hints of duplicity and fraud, as well as dangerous personal proclivities. With resistance to these and discretion there may be some fair opportunities, with advancement or preferment for those in employment. Correspondence or writings may promote the interests. A child born on this day should have a fairly active and clever mind, with efficiency and ambition, but may incline to subtlety and craft. It may succeed best in the employment of others.

For Friday, Dec. 26.

A RATHER happy and propitious state of affairs dominates on this day, with stirring events, pleasant trips or new adventures, possibly the aftermath of an unexpectedly prosperous holiday, with somewhat of the nature of a "windfall." It may be a belated honorarium or promotion, in recognition of steadfastness and hard application. In any case there is hope of attaining advancement, making desirable rearrangements, or suddenly seeing goals of solid progress in sight. It is a time for working toward this end.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of suddenly fulfilled ambitions, with new projects or rearrangements possibly calling for fresh environment or radical change of travel. There are assurances of recognition for hard work and fidelity to the interests of those in places of authority or power, with substantial openings for attaining cherished goals. A child born on this day should be talented, skilful, original, and should reach high plane of attainment, with prestige and popularity by its steadiness.

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

Monday Record Biggest of Year, When Stamp Sales Total $1,805; Cancellations on Same Day Reach 85,000; Business Slightly Under Mark of Last Year.

Marion postal employes today were beginning to recuperate from the Christmas rush and tomorrow will enjoy the holiday with their families.

This year's rush was practically as great as last year, although a slight falling off was noted by Postmaster French Crow. Receipts for the month to date are higher than for the corresponding period a year ago but part of the increase is due to the sale of Harding stamps the first of the month, he said.

Monday Leads

Monday was the biggest day of the rush this year and stamp sales exceeded slightly the peak day of last year. Sales Monday totaled $1,805.05 and those for the high day last December were $1,773.49.

The sales represent a per capita in Marion of six cents as compared to eight cents in Cleveland for the latter city's biggest day, postal officials here said.

Cancellations Monday totaled 85,000 and those on the biggest day a year ago amounted to 88,200.

Eight extra men were employed during the rush this year, four being used inside to work incoming and outgoing mail while the others were put on truck and house-to-house delivery. Last year none of the extra help was used inside.

No Deliveries Thursday

All packages received here today will be delivered unless late trains bring in too great a quantity, it was said.

No mail will be worked tomorrow when every employe will be given an opportunity to spend Christmas at his home.

Perhaps there were fewer presents and more greetings, but nevertheless Santa Claus had a banner mailing year in most Ohio cities, according to an Associated Press survey.

The day before Christmas found post office forces in general recuperating from record-breaking distribution of packages and cards, with Cincinnati reporting a 184 per cent increase in all mail handled to lead the way among the larger cities.

Cleveland and Sandusky were exceptions to the general rule. It was estimated the total amount of Christmas mail handled in Cleveland would show a decrease of nine per cent from last year. On the peak day there were 5,000,000 mailings, a drop of 1,000,000 from a year ago although a stamp sale record of $72,000 was set on Monday. At Sandusky there were many cards, but fewer packages mailed.

There were 2,205,000 mailings from Cincinnati on Monday, the busiest day, compared with 1,500,000 last year, while incoming mail was 10 per cent greater.

Pioneer Pistol Found Lodged Between Rocks

By International News Service

SUNBURY, Pa.—Found lodged between two rocks near a path that is known to be an old Indian trail, an ancient pistol, heavy with thick brown rust, turned up here recently and is now in the possession of a member of the Sunbury police force.

Those who have handled the antiquated firing-piece believe that it was in use in frontier days, probably before the American revolution.

The weapon, of the muzzle loader type, has a ram rod and a small powder detonator. Although the metal parts of the revolver are rusted beyond use, the walnut handle is in remarkable state of preservation.

Grange Men Lose Contest with Women

A Christmas program was presented at the meeting of Salt Rock Grange No. 2457 last night in the grange hall. During the business session plans were completed for the special meeting Tuesday night which will mark the close of the membership campaign. Members of the men's side will banquet the women's team winners in the contest. The program will be furnished by the women of the grange.

Following the program a Christmas exchange was held.

WITH LUTHERAN SCHOOL 25 YEARS

THE day after Christmas is a day of mixed emotions for a mixed population throughout the nation. To some it means sorrow and disappointment to others it brings cheer and happiness. This year the day after Christmas has a special significance for Dr. Otto Mees, President of Capital university at Columbus and consequently his home knows only happiness.

On the 26th of December, 1930, Dr. Mees will have completed his twenty-fifth year of activity at Capital. Seven of those years were spent as a student.

On Dec. 26, 1912 he accepted the call to the presidency of his Alma Mater, which at then but 6 years of age. Eighteen years have passed since that day after Christmas in 1912. Today Dr. Mees has passed his 50th year. Half of his life has been spent at the Lutheran University located in the beautiful suburbs of Columbus.

Dr. Mees recalls how he first came to Capital back in the early Nineties. At that time his father was a professor at a Lutheran Academy located in Woodville. The distance from Woodville to Columbus is more than one hundred miles and requries nearly three hours to travel today. But Dr. Mees then but a lad in his middle teens, had not even the luxury of a saddle horse, not to say anything of a train or a buckboard. He and a friend from Woodville made the long trek on bicycles and they made the distance in a single day despite the fact that concrete or improved roads were unheard of at that time.

• • •

PRESIDENT MEES still smiles in reminiscence of those days. He recalls how they always used to stop at a little German restaurant in Upper Sandusky in order to there consume huge quarter slices of blackberry pie. He recalls too how they had no plumbing fixtures at the school in his day as a student nor did they have a heating system. Water was carried to the rooms from a community plant in the back of the old dormitory.

WICKERSHAM DELAY LIKELY

THREATENS CONTROVERSY

It's Not Thought Report Will Come in Time To Disturb Congress.

By International News Service

WASHINGTON Dec. 24 The spectacle and political chaos that threatens to bring what little life is left to the 71st congress will not be further complicated by anything which the Wickersham commission may report according to word out of Republican leaders at the capitol.

While Washington is filled with this rumor and that concerning the intentions of the commission, principally that the long-awaited report is about due, several Republican leaders announced today that they had been given to understand that the report would not be sent to congress or made public during the remainder of this session, even if completed.

Rumors Are Plentiful

As to what the conclusions of the commission will be concerning prohibition, there are as many rumors as there are sparrows on Pennsylvania avenue. Reports that the commission is hopelessly deadlocked and that its differences have been adjusted vie with each other for credence. Chairman Wickersham remains smilingly and enigmatically silent.

Irrespective however of whether the commission does or does not report soon after Jan. 1, and irrespective also of what its conclusions may be, party leaders in congress are confident that President Hoover will not toss any fresh controversy into the den of dissension of Capitol Hill between now and March 4. Presumably their confidence is based on word from the White House to that effect.

Aim To Minimize Controversy

For one thing, Mr Hoover is extremely desirous of avoiding an extra session of the new congress after March 4. If that desire is to be realized, everything likely to promote controversy must of necessity be squelched. And the Wickersham report regardless of its nature is certain to provoke controversy in a big way.

If Mr Hoover wishes to do so he can withhold the report until March 4 has assured the death itself of the lame and turbulent session, and that according to Republican leaders on the hill is exactly what Mr Hoover proposes to do.

Meanwhile the commission is laboring nightly. And whether a mouse or a lion finally is brought forth remains to be seen.

Young Mellon Announces He Plans to Be a Financier.

By International News Service

WASHINGTON Dec. 24 Paul Mellon, only son of the secretary of the treasury, is going to enter his father's vast banking business next year and learn to be a financier.

It has been reported that young Mellon, who has a flair for writing, was going into the publishing business at the conclusion of his post graduate course in Cambridge university but here today, visiting his father for the holidays he dispelled the idea.

"I feel I ought to go to work in the bank so I can learn something of the management of father's interests, which are mostly centered about Pittsburgh," he said.

Both in prep school and later in Yale, young Mellon was identified with school publications.

"I still like to write," he said, "but mostly for the sake of writing. I guess, after all, I ought to learn the banking business."

Germany Moves To Foil Forgers of Currency

By International News Service

BERLIN Germany's professional money bill forgers should be very much upset about the Reichsbank's intention to withdraw all old paper money and issue entirely new bills within a few months.

In order to make life harder for the forgers, the Reichsbank will in future use steel engraving instead of the block prints now used. Also the quality of the paper will be better than that of the old notes.

It is intended to withdraw the 10 and 20 mark notes first and later the 50 and 100 mark bills.

Will Rogers, Edward Everett Horton and Bessie Love in Pictures.

BY HALLIE HOUCK

MARION won't go show-hungry Christmas day, not with Edward Everett Horton, Will Rogers and Bessie Love in town. All three of these sure-fire entertainers open here in pictures that are just being released from the studios. A special treat for the picture hounds who begin thinking up some place to go as soon as Christmas dinner is cleared away.

"ONCE A GENTLEMAN" PLAYS AT OHIO

Horton

When Horton made his professional stage debut he was assigned a numerical role. He impersonated no specified character, and in order for his friends and family in the audience to locate him they had to count 1-2-3, for Edward appeared as the third Japanese from the end in the chorus of "The Mikado," then being revived.

Being filled with the Christmas spirit, we'll let you in on a little of the plot. It's the tale of a mistaken identity and concerns a valet who takes a month's vacation to play gentleman. Now are you interested?

WILL ROGERS COMING IN "LIGHTNIN'"

One of the biggest stage successes in the history of Broadway, "Lightnin'," first produced by John Golden with Frank Bacon in the title role, opens at the Palace Thursday for a three day run with America's own Will Rogers in the lead.

"Lightnin'" is a humorous, pathetic character, one whose antics and audiences love him — almost from the moment he steps on the stage until he bows the curtain to a dramatic close. There's a story of young romance interwoven, but "Lightnin'" Bill Jones is the magnet towards whom everyone is drawn.

Louise Dresser has a splendid role in that of "Mrs. Jones," "Lightnin's" wife and throws a strong cast in support.

Lake Tahoe frequently referred to as Nature's chosen beauty spot, lies serene and placid more than 6,000 feet above the level of the sea. No other spot in America has been endowed with such amazingly picturesque backgrounds. This California locality was chosen as the background for Rogers' latest picture.

Divorce enters strongly into the plot of the picture, and while he was playing "Lightnin'," Rogers said: "The Chinese are the only ones who have solved the problem; they drown all the girl babies; smartest people in the world. Stop alimony and you'll put an end to divorce."

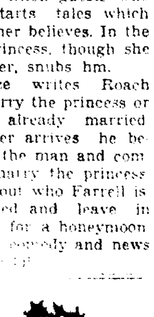
BESSE LOVE STARS IN "SEE AMERICA THIRST"

WHAT we don't know about "See America Thirst," opening at the Marion Christmas day, is plenty, but what we do know is that Slim Summerville, Bessie Love and Harry Langdon are headlining the cast.



BESSIE LOVE

Slim's biggest bid to fame came in "All Quiet," and since that time, the long, lanky, homely actor, has been busy at the studios. Bessie Love, another of the stars who came back with the talkies, and Langdon, should work together for hilarious Christmas entertainment.

NEW PRINCIPALITY DELIGHTFUL PLACE

Another delightful mythical kingdom has been created. The principality of Darizia, somewhere in the Balkans, "The Princess and the Plumber," closing at the Palace tonight, has brought this little country to light in an entertaining way.

Charles Farrell and Maureen O'Sullivan seem to like being teamed in a romance. Farrell is a young engineer sent to alter a heating plant installed in the Prince of Daritizia's castle. Of course he meets the princess. He thinks she's pretending and announced himself as a duke. She discovers him working in grimy overalls and is indignant. Bert Roach, an American millionaire who has leased the castle, saves her from an unpleasant situation with one of his titled guests who later in Paris starts tales which the princess' father believes. In the meantime the princess, though she loves the plumber, snubs him.

The old prince writes Roach that he must marry the princess or die. Roach is already married. When the father arrives he believes Farrell is the man and commands him to marry the princess. Before he finds out who Farrell is they are married and leave in Roach's ariplane for a honeymoon.

CHANCE TO CHASE FIRE ENGINE AT MARION TONIGHT

"The Third Alarm" Brings Plenty of Thrills, Love Interest, Too.

The problem for James Hall as Dan, in "The Third Alarm" at the Marion the last time tonight, was to keep Anita Louise as Milly Morton and George Billings as Jimmy, out of the orphange.

They were the children of Dan Morton, (Jean Hersholt) a fireman who was killed rescuing children in a third alarm fire.

Finally, Dan, also a fireman and Neeta (Mary Doran) agree on marriage, and adoption of the two children. Milly prove to be more than a child when she runs away from the orphange and visits Dan's home. Neeta senses her love for Dan and leaves before their scheduled marriage.

Meantime, police take Milly and Jimmie back to the orphange, where Jimmy and other children are locked in a room to prevent another runaway. Fire breaks out, another third alarm fire, trapping the children.

Dan rushes to the rescue, finds Milly is his true love and solves the orphange problem by marrying her and adopting Jimmy.

Indian War Recalled by Rebis Found in Illinois

...Ill.—In the eighteenth ... a war party of Illinois ... having been severely ... battle, took refuge on ... cliff at Utica, Ill., ... known as Starved ... time, they were able ... the attack of their ... eventually they suc... unrelenting siege. A ... wrecked from hun... to fight their way ... enemy lines at night ... and perhaps a few did succeed in escaping in darkness and confusion of battle.

In the light of these historical associations, the University of Illinois archaeological expedition to Utica pursued, during the last summer, investigations which uncovered numerous objects of peculiar significance and interest on Plum Island, just northwest of Starved Rock.

The archaeologists excavated an Indian village site on this island a bar of land of about 90 acres, located in the middle of the Illinois River.

They carefully removed the black refuse fill, containing many animal bones from the pits dug by the Indians, and now, with pits occurring in different levels, the island has been restored to the specifications of the original Indian villages.

The Illinois diggers found many bones of the larger grazing animals, the deer, bison, and elk, as well as the remains of smaller river mammals and various rodents. The large, orange-colored and sharply-curved tusks of the beaver occur again and again. Thousands of fish bones were boxed and sent to the natural history museums of the university for investigation of the species which flourished in the Illinois river hundreds of years ago.

Pottery fragments were found in great abundance. There are pots with both grit and shell temper and the finding vary in form, color, design, and method of tempering and firing, showing a wide range from prehistoric to historic Indian days. Decoration for instance is done by stamping, incising, paddle-marking, cord-marking, and finger-marking.

Masked Longing

BY HOWARD ROCKEY — A ROMANCE OF RADIO

SYNOPSIS

The lure of fine clothes is too much for Vivienne Gray, youthful New York model. She decides to wear an expensive but borrowed evening gown, in which she is to pose for an advertising photograph next day, on a "date" with Dwight Channing, artist. While driving they are caught in a downpour of rain and the dress is ruined. Vivienne is heartbroken, but Channing promises everything will be all right. Back in his pent-house apartment he gives her dry clothes. Then he reveals he has a contract to paint the mural decorations for a great new theater, and asks Vivienne if she will pose for them. She hesitates at first, but finally consents. Meanwhile Aileen, Vivienne's older sister, a musical comedy actress, is telling her friend, Jimmy Crane, a theatrical press agent, that she fears Vivienne's experiences in society will make her discontented with her career as a model.

CHAPTER 3

Love Versus Loyalty

JIMMY CRANE gave a prayer of thanks to the god of thunder. Aileen was terrified by storms. As a result of this one, Jimmy was holding her on his lap as he might have soothed a child.

Tenderly, he stroked her head. The light of the lamp brought out a coppery tint in the tousselled gold. Jimmy adored red hair. Not a belligerent red like his own—the curly, rebellious sort of crop that usually goes with freckles. He adored the subtle shade that blended with the cream of Aileen's complexion. He felt the palpitation of her heart after each deafening crash.

The warmth of her body, close to his, made his pulse race faster. Now the worst was over. Aileen sat up.

"I know I'm a little fool," she smiled, "but I just can't help it! I hope Viv wasn't out of doors—but it doesn't frighten her."

Jimmy frowned and held his peace. He wished Aileen would think more of herself; less about Vivienne. With a little sigh she slipped from his lap. Jimmy had no notion how contented she had been there. Nestling close in his arms had stirred her with a poignant longing. With a fierce determination, she refused to listen to this plaintive inner voice. To yield would complicate the problem she saw before her.

Family camaraderie and her loyalty to the theater were the dominating sentiments of which she always had been conscious. Now she was bewildered. She resented a gnawing hunger which must not be satisfied. Possibly Jimmy was battling too.

Jimmy looked at her longingly. Why the devil couldn't he tell her that he worshipped every inch of her—that there wasn't another girl in the world with her spunk and pluck? It was all wrong, he reasoned. Aileen thought of nothing but her work. She was only 25 and she foolishly resisted every urge of youth. How hard she often found this, Jimmy was unaware.

Out of the ominous summer stillness came another terrific crash. Aileen screamed and would have fallen if he had not caught her. She was limp in his arms when he carried her to the davenport.

With unconsidered impulse, he bent down and kissed her. Her arms wrapped about him. Eyes still closed, he, lips met his in possessive understanding. Each was reluctant to break the spell that bound them for the moment. Yet both knew they must.

"Jimmy, old dear," she said, slowly, "I'm glad we've both found out. I think it's going to help us—keep from being foolish. Let me try to make you see why I want to keep on as I'm doing.

"You know you can count on me," he interrupted.

"Of course. Sometimes I've wished I couldn't that you weren't so darned loyal—"

"You mean that you've wished—"

Aileen felt his muscles tense. "Not really," she added quickly. "But—well, I owe you some explanation. You've scolded me for not going out, for not trying to advance myself through influential friends. Vivienne does, I know—but we're totally different. Vivienne is mother's daughter. I am more like dad."

"I've heard of him," said Jimmy, "but I don't recall your mother."

"You're too young on Broadway to remember that sensation. Dad either couldn't or wouldn't make capital of it. I adored my father. But he was only a mediocre actor."

"Well, you've talent — if he hadn't," Jimmy spoke earnestly. "But nowadays you've got to grab opportunity and lead it by the nose."

"I know that line," she reminded him. "But I want you to know the rest. My mother's family disowned her when she married. Actors were anathema then. She'd been used to everything and until she died, Dad gave her all he could. He felt that he owed her indulgence."

"I get it all," said Jimmy. "You're carrying on and Viv is like your mother. But darn it, Aileen, it's up to her to get things for herself. You'll break down if you keep on."

"You don't know me! I'm a born trouper. Dad must have foreseen how things would work out. He wanted Viv sent to a boarding school, but half of his insurance went for my stage tuition, and I still keep it up. On days when we haven't rehearsals, I take music lessons. I practice dance steps till my feet ache. Do you wonder I dodge parties? Jim, when I leave the theater at night my only ambition is bed."

"The point is, what is it getting you?" Jimmy seemed unimpressed.

"I'm getting a hundred and twenty a week," she answered practically. "That takes care of my personal needs and pays for this apartment."

"You mean that you foot all the bills?"

"Viv helps—when she's making money—but her work's spasmodic. Jim, I'm afraid if I don't stand by—"

"I get you," he said resignedly. The sound of Vivienne's key in the door kept him from adding more. Both of them stared at Viv in surprise as she greeted them casually.

"What's the plot of this foolish opera?" Jimmy inspected her quizzically. "So Cinderella runs true to form! You go out dolled up like a movie star and return as a kitchen mechanic."

"Perfectly natural theater," Viv laughed carelessly. "Now that the party's over, I'm ready to get breakfast." She told them about her drenching. "Channing loaned me this maid's uniform."

"But the dress!" exclaimed Aileen. "Is it completely ruined?"

"Channing said not to worry." Apparently Vivienne wasn't in the least concerned. He's going to phone to Galler's and fix things up in the morning."

Touches of winter have been reported in both Florida and California. The game is in the first quarter, and the score is a tie.

Reports from the larger cities of the land show that the past week's Christmas buying this year was equal in volume to that of the week before Christmas last year. It takes more than business depression and unemployment to down the Christmas spirit.

Suffrage for the women of India has been demanded from the London round table conference. What! Do they want to purify politics over there also?

A national convention of the Farmer-Labor party was held in Washington this week. Of course only three of the party were in attendance—Senator Shipstead, Representative Kvale and Governor-Elect Olson, all of Minnesota—but then, that's the big end of the organization.

Citizens of Monte Carlo rioted, this week, because the Prince of Monaco is always traveling over Europe instead of staying at home and attending to his job. Mayor Jimmy Walker should give his friend, the prince, a tip on how to get away with a thing like that.

Nationalist government troops have captured three towns which were red centers, slaying 2,000 and breaking up the two-year-old Chinese soviet republic. The really amazing phase of the thing was that over half the campaign against the reds was waged in the rain. The old joke about the Chinese postponing fighting "on account of rain" will no longer work.

Ontario police seized $150,000 worth of booze in transit to the United States and variously billed as hardware, crockery, China and apples, and even though the stuff was reported to have been labeled Canadian, there's no telling how many lives they saved thereby.

An association of German monarchists has been organized in Berlin for the purpose of propagandizing for a hereditary monarchy and "doing justice to Kaiser Wilhelm II." You never can tell which way the cat may jump, but were we Wilhelm, we wouldn't start packing our trunk right off the reel.

The governor of Alabama has released 300 convicts from the state prison for fifteen days that they may go home for the Christmas holidays. Here's a prediction. Baring possible illness to prevent some from returning, practically every man will be back at the prison at the end of fifteen days, despite the fact that many of them are serving time for second-degree murder and burglary.

Christmas.

Christmas eve. A hush of expectancy intensified by the silent, gleaming snow. An old-fashioned white Christmas, with warm lights gleaming from millions of windows.

Mother and father laughing softly as their hands touch in the maze of the green Christmas tree branches. Children sleeping restlessly, dreaming of the surprises that await them on the morning of mornings.

Little groups gathered in worship, visions of a cherished Christmas scene of centuries ago before their reverent eyes. The half-lost strain of a Christmas carol wafted down on a cloud of snowflakes.

Elsewhere, gay parties and happy holiday fellowship. Laughing faces, beauty, color, music and wit.

And somewhere, good people sitting peacefully forming unspoken thanksgiving in their hearts for the abundant goodness of a world that tries to remember all its unfortunate ones, to provide them with food and clothing. Everywhere, high and low, rich and poor, an articulate wish that it may be "A Merry Christmas."

Christmas day. Boisterous laughter, gifts and gladness. The pungent odor of good things to eat. The tonic of balsam, pine and fir for an appetizer. Friendly smiles and overflowing cheer. The happiest day of all the year—a day the purging spirit of which brings out the best qualities of human nature. Young and old are brought closer together. The home is glorified in the gladness of abundant love exercised freely. There is a vast community of open-handed fellowship for at least once in the year.

Yet, in the face of a noble emotional expression that makes the whole world kin at Christmas time there are those who charge, skeptically, that Christmas is nothing more than a commercialized project in the machine age. There is a vast deal of buying and selling, to be sure, but he who fails to see and understand the spirit impelling the buying and giving is blind indeed.

Transatlantic Passenger Rates Slashed

Transatlantic passenger traffic suffered a decrease of approximately 30(%) passengers during the present year, according to the estimate announced at the Atlantic conference in Brussels, and the result is that practically all the transatlantic lines with the exception of the German slashed prices this week from ten to fifty-two per cent, to win back the volume of patronage lost. The cuts do not affect the winter prices alone, but the summer as well.

The reductions are announced by the United States Lines, the French line, the Cunard line and the International Mercantile Marine company, which controls the American, Atlantic, French, Panama Pacific, Red Star and White Star lines. The German shipping lines have not yet made announcements, but they are expected to do so in the near future, and possibly the Polish line also will meet the slashes. The reductions made by the United States Lines, for example, affect the Leviathan, its flagship and sister ships.

An idea of the effect of the cuts may be had when it is stated that de luxe outside staterooms may now be had on the Leviathan at an advance of but five dollars a day, or $35 a trip, over the minimum fare, which means about $215. Suites on this vessel consisting of three rooms, three baths, a veranda and a trunk room may be occupied by three persons for $1,430 against the old price of $2,750, and smaller suites which formerly cost $1,000 upward, may now be had from $755 to $780.

The International Mercantile Marine has cut not only first-class rates, but second-class and cabin ship rates as well. The "regal" suite on the Majestic which use to sell for $2,530 in the winter and $3,540 in the summer, now costs $1,395 and $2,637.50 for the respective seasons. Cuts ranging from ten to twenty-five per cent have been made on the Olympic and the Homeric, the Red Star liners sailing to Antwerp and the Atlantic Transport line's Minnewaska and Minnetonka. In addition, the low rates are extended to include all of April for eastbound traffic and apply to westbound up to July 15.

The suites on the Berengaria, the prize ship of the Cunard line, have been cut from $265 to $840 according to the size and location of the suite, and the French line's cuts, which apply to second as well as first-class fares, in some cases are as great as fifty-two per cent.

As a matter of fact, Americans can go to Europe at any time now up to April 30 and return at any time before July 15 for just about one-half the transportation cost which has been exacted during the past decade.

If the slashing of rates has the effect the transatlantic lines hope for, Americans who are contemplating a trip to the Old world next year will do well to make their reservations early and avoid the rush.

Statistics prepared by the home economic bureau of the department of commerce show that the average American farm woman works 61½ hours a week, while her city sister works 49⅛ hours. Strange to say, neither has even hinted at striking for a six-hour day and a five day week. They should organize and get into the popular swim.

Mayor William Hale Thompson, of Chicago, has sued Colonel Robert I. Randolph, president of the Chicago chamber of commerce, for $1,000,000 damages, charging slander. "Big Bill" probably figures that he can utilize the publicity to good effect in his campaign for nomination for a fourth term as mayor.

Madame Alexandra Kollantay, soviet ambassador to Sweden, who has been wearing rich furs and driving about Stockholm in a magnificent coach drawn by four horses, has been recalled to Moscow, her extravagant display having caused comment in the Swedish capital, which has been more pronounced since stories coming out of Russia have told of lack of food there. "Liberty and Equality."

Electric locomotives of 7,200-horsepower are to be operated through the nine-and-a-half-mile St. Gothard tunnel to cut something like half an hour in time off the run from western Switzerland to the Mediterranean at Genoa. The thing would be a lot easier to understand were it held out that their purpose was to get travelers half an hour sooner into "Switzerland, the Delightful."

The radio fans of a California town are up in arms and searching for a bootlegger who is electrically aging whisky and causing such interference as to render their receiving sets useless. There are times when one is inclined to wonder if electric rectifiers aren't being worked in this neck of the woods.

Editorial Opinion.

SECESSION IN WEST CANADA.

There was much talk of secession at the late Imperial conference in London.

South Africa, which once fought and lost a desperate war to establish its independence, demanded that the privilege of peaceful withdrawal from the union of British dominions should be formally recognized. To do this in so many words was later adjudged unnecessary, for it was said that the right of secession was to be inferred from other decisions providing for full autonomy in each former dependency.

Secession of one or more of its provinces from a dominion itself is another matter, but if the right exists in the one case, why not in the other? The London conference was hardly ended before a sentiment for seceding from Canada began to mount high in the western areas of that dominion. Farmers of all Alberta, meeting at Calgary, passed resolutions the other day urging that Western Canada be set apart as a separate free-trade district. Farmers elsewhere in that region seem to have gone farther.

At Wynward, Saskatchewan, farmers declared for secession. At Strasbourg, in the same province, a strong association of farmers indorsed a plan for establishing a government of their own under the British flag as a member of the British commonwealth of nations, but independent of Ottawa. Premier John Bracken, of Manitoba, fears that unless current demands for farm relief are fully satisfied, secession will become a very serious issue.

In what manner, however, can present ideas as to farm relief be complied with? Is Dominion Premier Bennett likely to go into the price-fixing business and give a government guarantee of $1.15 a bushel for wheat as a maximum? Committed to high protective tariffs, is he likely to heed the West's demand for free trade, or at least low tariffs? That $1.15 wheat and low duties are the sole alternative of secession, is the farmer ultimatum.

Sheriffs throughout the West are levying on a large number of farms for nonpayment of taxes. Sheriff boycott associations are being organized and, given warm indorsement by no small number of farm bodies, are contributing to the general anti-government attitude.

Sanction for secession, whether at London or anywhere else, seems to be a rather dangerous thing.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Old Fort Industry.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

The late S. S. Knabenshue, editor of the Toledo Blade, made thorough search for the site of old Fort Industry, which is known to be somewhere within the present city of Toledo, but declared it was hopelessly lost. "The History of Northwest Ohio," published by E. H. Hardesty & Company, Chicago, 1882, gives definite statements regarding the old fort, which, it would seem, ought to locate the site exactly. It is there stated that the fort stood on the left bank of the Maumee, just below the mouth of Swan Creek, and at the northeast corner of the "Twelve Miles Square Cession."

"The Twelve Miles Square Cession" was a reserve out of the territory, lying north of the Greenville Treaty line, that the United States should have. Fort Miami was at the center of this Cession—a stronghold whose possession in the heart of the Indian country was regarded as very desirable in controlling the situation in the northwest.

Its lines ran with the cardinal directions and the northeast corner of it rested on the left bank of the Maumee river, which bisected the cession in the heart of the Indian territory of the pioneer period.

As to when the fort was built and how long maintained, historians are not agreed. It seems probable that General Wayne established it soon after the Greenville treaty as a part of his military plans for holding the Indian and British problems in the northwest well in hand.

The records of the war department are silent on the subject of Fort Industry. It is the one fortification of Indian days that stood within boundary lines of Toledo and a desire has been expressed to have its site properly marked.

Christmas Day Gift Bearing.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Every animal must have salt. Wild deer will travel miles to find the salt-licks. The kind and wise farmer supplies salt for his horses and all his stock. Health is promoted by its giving.

When I was a little boy, visiting my grandfather, it was my joy to go with him every Sunday morning to "salt the sheep." The animals would crowd about us, eager to get their share from the wooden measure.

The proverbs of a people are like the salt. Cicero described them as the "salt pits of a nation." He regarded them as the "treasured preservatives against corruption."

From earliest youth we have had drilled into us these short, pithy statements of important practical truths. "Honesty is the best policy." "Nothing is safe from fault finders." "No work, no recompense." "Murder will out"—The number is endless.

That book of the Bible, known as "The Proverbs," is the most remarkable of all such collections. Solomon's words of wisdom are known of all men.

Recently I was struck by this one of Solomon's sayings: "A gift is as a precious stone in the eyes of him that hath it."

No matter how little its money value may be, we prize a gift made or selected just for us. An article that cost a dime is indeed as a precious stone.

Christmas is a day of gift bearing. Just as the "Wise Men" carried to the Christ Child gifts of gold and frankincense and myrrh, so we shower upon our children today gifts of every sort. Loving thoughts go with them. All in all, this is a day of tender experiences. No wonder the thoughts of Christmas day are among the most cherished of all our memories.

It is not alone because of the holy origin of the day that we celebrate it. It is also because of the thrills and emotions that we experience in counting our blessings on this day of days. God's gift, not only of His own Son, but His gift to us of the child life within our walls, fills our hearts with gratitude.

In our turn, the greatest gift we can bestow upon our dear ones is the gift of health. No matter what sacrifice is demanded, we are determined that our children shall be well and strong.

Sometimes we are careless about doing all things that health demands. Unless we give thought to its problems, not on Christmas and birthdays alone, we are likely to overlook the physical needs of the child. Watchful, intelligent oversight are essential to the well-being of the growing youngster.

Let us open our eyes every Christmas morning, confident that the year has recorded no neglect of the greatest gift the child can have, the gift of abounding health. Such a gift is worth more than pearls and rubies.

A—The trouble is probably due to overexertion or strain, which has caused swelling of the veins or what is known as varicose veins. Bandaging or wearing an elastic stocking will help to some extent. Prayer—"There the glorious triumph waits, lift your heads, eternal gates."

Discouragements of Morse.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The history of invention is one of the most stirring of human stories, recording as it does the triumph of man over nature, the conquest of the new domains by the ingenuity, patience and genius of the inventor. But many chapters are sad, and some are tragic—recording the brilliant ideas never carried to completion, the tentative beginnings which had no endings.

Many inventors have lost their entire fortunes, some have labored for years in poverty, others have even died of starvation. Samuel Morse, the inventor of the American telegraph, did not come in this latter category. Although he was once within twenty-four hours of starvation, he eventually won through all his difficulties and achieved a world-wide fame and success.

When he sought the support of foreign governments for his invention he met with virtual failure everywhere. But in the latter part of his career, when his system was in almost universal use, he was honored and rewarded by these same countries which had denied him in the hour of his need.

In 1858, when Morse was sixty-seven years old, representatives of Austria, Belgium, France, Holland, Italy, Russia and Turkey, at the instance of Napoleon III, presented him with an international testimony in the form of a gift of $400,000. Many honors and medals were conferred upon him during his latter years; and he enjoyed the distinction of witnessing the unveiling to him of a bronze statue in Central park, New York, one year before his death, when he was almost eighty-one years old, on April 2, 1872.

Morse was one of the rare examples in history of the bipartite genius in both art and science. Born at Charlestown, Massachusetts, on April 27, 1791, he early determined to become an artist; although he was much interested in electrical experiments while a student at Yale. Soon after graduation, he made the acquaintance of the distinguished American artist Washington Allston; and in 1811 accompanied Allston to England, where he studied under the famous master, Benjamin West, also an American.

After winning a gold medal and having his paintings exhibited at the Royal academy, Morse after four years returned to this country, founding the National Academy of Design and becoming professor of arts in the University of the City of New York.

Following a second visit to Europe, where he remained three years, Morse once more returned to the United States, in 1832. It was on the return voyage that he conceived the idea of recording telegraph, with an electro magnet as the basic feature of the proposed invention. He struggled on with his art and his teaching, in his spare moments working away upon his fascinating invention.

During the year, 1836, the telegraph was born, in a room of the University of the City of New York. The following year the invention was considerably perfected; and successful demonstrations of its operation was given in New York.

In 1838, the congressional committee on commerce reported favorably on making an appropriation; but it was necessary for his rights that his invention be patented in European countries before publication in the United States.

Morse went abroad in the interest of his invention, only to meet with disappointment at every turn. On his return, congress made an appropriation of $30,000 on March 3, 1843, the last day of the expiring session. The first telegraph line in the United States was laid between Washington and Baltimore. The first message, deeply eloquent in its simplicity and reverence, was sent on May 24, 1844: "What God hath wrought!" — Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Dec. 24—New York has professional snoopers known as "courtesy shoppers." They are young and personable women employed by department and chain drug stores, syndicate restaurants such as Child's and Fifth avenue buses. They keep tab on conduct of sales forces through direct contact.

While such employes are spies, they do not deserve the opprobrium usually bestowed on the guild. Their aim is constructive rather than destructive. They are not concerned with a clerk's dishonesty, but with better his relations with patrons.

It is seldom any one is discharged because of their adverse report. On the other hand, in instances many who would not likely have been noticed have received suddenly desired promotion. It has proved remarkably productive in flushing out new talent.

In a department store, for example, the "courtesy shopper" is given an amount of money and a list of clerks in the store to be visited and from whom certain purchases are to be made. She makes a complete written report of each transaction.

If the clerk is polite or otherwise is duly set down. Personal appearance of employes is noted along with points about display and such. If impolite, a warning letter is sent. If especially courteous, the deed is recorded on an individual chart.

A certain number of marks mean a promotion and higher pay. The "courtesy shopper" receives from $30 to $50 a week, for obvious reasons can not remain in the position more than a limited period. Yet she may go to other such jobs through an ever-changing system.

The high-class civility among bus conductors is largely due to this scheme. In drug stores and restaurants the cleanliness and efficiency, or lack thereof, are tabulated. The whole effect is to give otherwise lost individuals an organization the "Big Chance."

Outside of Bronxites, few New Yorkers are acquainted with that beautiful serenity in the upper reaches of the island known as Van Cortlandt park. It is a larger area than Central park and some of the most enticing bridle walks and motor drives are there. The old mansion of Frederick Van Cortlandt, a pioneer, is open to an entrance. He replied: "Only like yourself, sir, out of pity." As I went on somehow hoping that in the Utopia a careless world will take care of the aged.

One of the newest night club masters of ceremony has the gait of a peon leading a burro through a sleepy Mexican village. Oyster-eyed and fiddle-faced, his voice is a whining drawl. He often yawns and naps in the middle of a sentence. In contrast to the jumping-bean, hand-clapping and shouting variety surfeiting the town he is a welcome riot.

At Your Age, George!

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Dec. 24—Departure of Prince Albert de Ligne, Belgian ambassador to the United States since 1927, means more to Washington than the mere fact that a foreign country has changed its diplomatic representative in this country.

Back in June of 1927, when it became known that the prince was coming here as Minister bert's envoy, the so-called smart set in the capital sat up and took notice.

Royalty was to take up residence here. A man whose family ranks next to the ruler of Belgium was coming. The diplomatic post would have in its ranks one whose position was among the highest ever held in that body.

Prince de Ligne's assignment to Washington was looked upon as a sort of subtle compliment on the part of Belgium. The prince was rather young to get an embassy assignment. Belgium usually prefers older men than he for such posts.

• • •

But the Belgian ambassador had proved himself as a diplomat at other posts. He had been minister in Holland for his country during the difficult days of the World war and had acquitted himself creditably.

So the royal house of de Ligne came to Washington and established itself at the Belgian embassy on Massachusetts avenue. Almost from the start the capital was talking about the household.

The simplicity of manner, the directness, adaptability of the prince and his bride won for them immediately the admiration of official Washington.

The prince—thick set, florid, handsome, distinguished—became a great social favorite. And the princess—the beautiful and charming—was just as successful. Their two daughters, Princess Elizabeth and Princess Anne, took their places in the social whirl of the capital.

The whole family speaks perfect English. That of the prince is flawless—a delight to hear.

• • •

Outside his interest in the duties of ambassador, Prince de Ligne has great interest in his vast estates in the Congo. Before coming to the United States as ambassador he had been there, and even thought for a while he might remain there.

Big game hunting and all the things connected with that section of the world have tremendous appeal for him. This was evident when the African explorers—the Martin Johnsons—came to Washington; Prince de Ligne had them as his guests at the embassy.

While in Washington the prince identified himself prominently with various phases of American life. He sponsored an exhibition of Belgian art in this country.

And at the Georgetown foreign service school in the capital he established a scholarship for promoting closer intellectual relations between his country and the United States.

Mechanical Hen Draws Attention of Crowds

By International News Service

CHICAGO—One of the oddities which attracted a great deal of attention at the poultry exposition held recently in conjunction with the International Livestock Exposition was a mechanical hen, a part of the department of agriculture exhibit.

This fowl of wheels, wires and bellows revealed a cross section which, when operated, traced food through the blood stream and demonstrated the workings of the egg factory. Tiny mechanical men performed various functions in the different departments of the "plant."

While these robots made the yolk, added the white and covered the combination with the shell of the egg, the hen, with the aid of a phonograph record, delivered a lecture describing the process.

Widows More Numerous Than Widowers in U. S.

By International News Service

NEW YORK—Widows in this country are twice as numerous as widowers, the proportion being 69% to 31% according to the latest figures of a large life insurance company.

"Which of the two dies first is a matter of chance, but the probabilities of survival are not at all evenly divided between the two," the bulletin of the company said. "In the majority of cases the husband is the older of the two partners. Men, however, are subject to a somewhat higher mortality than women. Thus, on two separate counts, the odds tend to be somewhat against the husband's survival."

Believe Underground Lake Exists Under Road

By International News Service

SOUTH CHINA, Me.—Belief is stronger than ever in this little Quaker town that an underground lake exists beneath the state highway which runs through the village on the Augusta Belfast road, because of the latest cave in.

After engineers gave their approval, to repairs costing $30,000 in filling in a cavity 400 feet in length and ranging in depth from 15 to 40 feet, the road again began to sink gradually in sections, some of the places being down to a depth of 10 to 12 feet.

As the trucks go from one place to another to fill up gaping wounds in the roadbed, another new cavein is discovered.

Accuracy at Any Cost Convicts Man of Crime

By International News Service

PORTLAND, Ore.—John Walker, 28-year-old amateur holdup man from Swan River, Manitoba, Can., walked into police headquarters here and demanded that a published report that he had held up two women in a local confection parlor and stolen $32 be corrected. Walker declared to the dumfounded desk sergeant that he had only secured $28.

He later complained to police authorities that the county jail was "too uncomfortable" and asked that he be placed in the state penitentiary.

Music Pupils Are Entertained

Miss Clara H. Leffler entertained her violin and cello pupils at a Christmas party Monday afternoon at her studio on South State street. The room was lighted with Christmas tapers and a miniature park added a decorative note to the room. A violin solo, "Mosquito Dance," was played by Robert Henning and a story, "How Come Christmas," was read by Miss Leffler. The award in a music note reciting contest was presented Genevieve Doering. A gift exchange and Christmas favors were enjoyed during the social hour.

A Chicago vaudeville house which planned to serve patrons with food and drink abandoned the idea when nearby restaurants protested.

DAY HAS TWO MEANINGS

MR. AND MRS. E. C. HOLLYDAY

CHRISTMAS means a great deal to everyone, but to Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hollyday of 261 East George street, it is a day of memories and dreams of years gone by. On Christmas day they will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Quietly, this year, for both are in ill health. They were married on Dec. 23, but Christmas day has always marked off their wedding anniversaries.

Three of their four children are living. Mrs. Jessie David lives in Alliance, Robert H. Hollyday lives in Toledo, and Mrs. Bernice Baker lives at home. A son George died June 27, 1911.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollyday were married on Dec. 23, 1880, in Toledo at the home of Mrs. Hollyday's sister, Mrs. George B. Shultz. Mrs. Hollyday was 78 years old on July 19 and Mr. Hollyday was 75 on Sept. 23.

Two great-grandchildren and four grandchildren make things lively when they visit their grandparents.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollyday have lived in Marion 37 years.

RUSSIA intends to do away with drunkenness. The national drink is vodka, 40 per cent pure alcohol, 60 per cent water. Government controls sales, largely cuts the supply and increases prices.

Last year's liquor bill in Russia was $750,000,000.

That would not support half of our bootleg liquor dealers as they are accustomed to being supported.

Bootlegging will never be profitable in Russia. Stalin probably would call it a capitalistic conspiracy against the soviet, and march bootleggers and customers out in batches to be shot.

HOOVER IN PATH OF PARTY WAR

Speculation Turns to White House in Norris and Lucas Conflict.

SENATOR VOICES ATTACK

Two Sides Lining Up; Watson Assures Support to President.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24—The Norris-Lucas conflict swung toward the White House today, as speculation turned on how soon President Hoover should take a hand.

Senator Norris, the Republican insurgent from Nebraska whose ouster from party ranks is sought by Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, turned his latest attack directly on the chief executive, questioning his Republicanism.

Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, asserted the issue of Norris' regularity was not now before the senate. As for retaining Lucas, whose participation in an attempt to defeat Norris in the last election has just been uncovered, Watson said that was up to the President.

"If he wants to keep Lucas I will support him to the limit," he added.

Borah Against Lucas

Senator Borah of Idaho, also a Republican independent, aligned himself against Lucas with the words, "Let them get out—those who have disgraced the party."

The Republican director came back to the fray with another defense of his secret financing of literature intended for circulation in Nebraska and other states.

"I undertook to make an effort to offset the hurtful effect of the hundreds of thousands of dollars spent by Mr. Raskob and the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment," he said, "by using a cartoon which called attention to the evils of the barroom and giving publicity to Mr. Raskob's slogan adopted by him when he said 'I am accepting the chairmanship of the Democratic national committee to help Al Smith rid the country of this damnable prohibition'."

Norris in a statement said he was "fighting for the Republican party when Mr. Hoover himself was a resident voter of Great Britain."

Criticizes Hoover

"Mr. Wood, representative from Indiana and a critic of Norris, and Mr. Lucas, even though backed up by Mr. Hoover, do not constitute the Republican party. . . . The fact that Mr. Wood makes this outburst just after talking with the President is another indication that the President himself is willing to lend his name to assisting the conspirators in their disreputable methods of controlling the party."

Lucas asserted only $850 of the $4,000 he borrowed on a note secured by Republican committee funds went toward his fight on Norris, and added that "no one else had any responsibility in the matter whatsoever."

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 24—The economic difficulties of the world are due to "the interdependence of the nations' economy," Pope Pius XI said today in accepting the Christmas wishes of the Sacred College of Cardinals.

In his Christmas eve address to the Cardinals the Pope asked prayers for Soviet Russia, China and Mexico.

The cardinals headed by Cardinal Granito Pignatelli Di Belmonte, bishop of Albano and dean of the Sacred college, visited the Pope to extend Christmas wishes. All of the cardinals resident here participated in the ceremony.

Cardinal Granito read an address to the Pope who replied by briefly reviewing the church history of the year and touching on the world economic depression which has been acutely felt at Christmas time in various parts of the world.

"The world is upset on account of the interdependence of nations' economy," said the pope.

Again he said: "The true peace alone is Christ's peace."

The pope also vigorously condemned "Protestant propaganda" in Rome.

In the past the pope has made several attacks on "the proselyting" by Protestants among the Catholics of the Italian capital, especially in the suburbs where the Protestant organizations have been most thoroughly developed.

dreds of others, repaired and repainted three toys. After a city-wide survey to determine where the toys are most needed, they are being distributed.

The toys include everything from magnets to sleds and skates. Books, dolls, and even popcorn will be found in some of the packages. Distribution is under supervision of the Family Welfare society.

If a Marion family goes hungry Christmas day, it will be because the circumstances are not known. The Salvation Army, taking charge of basket distribution for needy families on the records of the Marion Community Fund, began distribution of 80 baskets at 3 p. m. today. Forty names were given the Salvation Army by the Community Fund, while the other 40 baskets will go to persons found by Salvation Army workers to be in need.

Eagles Plan Aid

Marion Eagles are ready to extend a substantial Christmas offering to 100 needy families Wednesday. Baskets containing a variety of foods, with a few extras for the kiddies, will be distributed Wednesday by the Merchants' Delivery. An additional 15 baskets, made up by the women's auxiliary of the lodge, will also be delivered.

Members of the lodge were busy this morning packing baskets with foodstuffs. A basket contains a smoked ham, lard, from 10 pounds to three pecks of potatoes, butter, coffee, two pounds of beans, can of tomatoes, five pounds cornmeal, sack of flour, five pounds carrots, five pounds cabbage, cans of corn and peas, graham and soda crackers, salt, toilet and laundry soap, two pounds each of spaghetti and pancake flour, quart of milk, pint of cottage cheese, candy, nuts, oranges and apples.

All these baskets go to persons outside the membership of families of members of the lodge. In addition to these baskets, a number of others will go to unfortunate members.

Dozens of church groups and private individuals are preparing one or more baskets for distribution Thursday. These will find their way into homes of needy persons.

Dinner for County Wards

Inmates of county and city institutions will be given something to remember Christmas. Special dinners are being prepared in practically every such institution a survey today revealed.

Prisoners in county jail will sit down to a chicken dinner and all the trimmings Christmas day, Mrs. J. J. Francis said today. Giblet gravy, mashed and sweet potatoes, cranberries, celery, mince pie, and oranges are on the jail menu.

Children at the detention home and the children's home will fare nearly as well. Special dinners have been prepared for them. The county home folk will be served a fresh pork dinner, potatoes, gravy, fruit and mince pie.

Oakland Heights community tonight will stage a gay party for children of the neighborhood. The party will take place at Bellefontaine avenue and Davids street, where a large decorated Christmas tree has been erected.

School children will start off the evening with Christmas carols tonight at 7, followed by a distribution of candy treats and a toy for each child. Other events will follow on the program.

The party is sponsored by merchants and business men of Oakland Heights.

Here again the grand simplicity of the architecture dominates the congregation. Women in glittering evening dress kneel beside farmmaidens in coarse clothing before the famed chapel. Highly manicured fingers and calloused hands receive the same wafer and benediction from the same priest.

A king of England once supplied lead for the roof of the church of Nativity and Turks at the end of the 17th century stripped the lead to make bullets. Today, however, a few police under the direction of an English officer, are sufficient to keep order.
